As will be seen from the above statement, there was no vicarage endowment at Sandiacre, as was often the case with prebends, but the whole of the tithes and oblations fell to the prebendary, he being held responsible for the due performance of Divine Service. This in the old days would often be done, at all events during certain periods of the year, by the prebend himself, but more usually, and subsequently entirely, by a chaplain or curate. Yet even this responsibility was shifted on to other shoulders, for it became the habit, certainly as early as the fifteenth century, to farm the rectory of Sandiacre on lease under the prebendary; the lessee in that case becoming also responsible for the finding of a curate. In 1592, Thomas Charlton became lessee of the rectory; his father, Thomas Charlton, had settled at Sandiacre some short time before, having come out of Lancashire.† He died in 1631, and was buried with his father in the chancel, having been thirty-nine years lessee of the prebend. His son Edward inherited the rectory; he was a Commissioner under the Parliament during the Civil War, and a Justice of the Peace for Derbyshire. The Parliamentary Survey of Livings, in Lambeth Library, for the year 1650, speaks thus of Sandiacre :—

“Sandeacre is a prebend belonging to the Deane and Chapter of Litchfeild really worth one hundred pounds per annum. Mr. Edward Charleton is farmer and procures the cure supplied. Mr. William Viccars officiates and is an able man and of good conversacion. The rent reserved to the Deane is eight pounds per annum, to the Archdeacon tenn shillings and seaven pence, to the Prebendarye seaven pounds six shillings and eight pence.”

Joseph Moore succeeded to William Viccars, as minister of Sandiacre, shortly after the drawing up of this report, and was ejected for nonconformity in 1662. “He entred Young into the Ministry; but his Youth was not despicable, being Grave, Serious, and Savoury.”‡

Edward Charlton died in 1658. The rectory remained with his descendants until 1704, when the lease expired, on the death of his nephew, Nicholas Charlton, of London, aged 82, on whose life

* Or it may have been on that part of Risley township which is included in Sandiacre parish. See the subsequent account of Risley chapelry.

† Thomas Charlton, the first who settled at Sandiacre, died in 1578. By his will, he leaves to his “brother Hamlet a blew cote.” Hamlet Charlton was vicar of Bakewell, where he was buried in 1614.—Churches of Derbyshire, vol. ii., p. 44.

(Arms and Crest of Charlton: Az., on a chevron, or, between three swans, arg., three cinquefoils, gu. Crest, a swan's head and neck erased, arg., beaked gn., gorged with a chaplet vert.)*

* This coat, except the cinquefoils, was borne by Thomas Charlton, the first who settled at Sandiacre, being the coat of his ancestors, the Charltons of Hillingdon, Middlesex, one of whom, Sir Thomas Charleton, was Speaker of the House of Commons in 1453. This coat was confirmed to his son, Thomas, by Richard St. George Norrey, in 1612, with the augmentation of the three cinquefoils, and the granting of a crest. From Nicholas, the eldest surviving son of this second Thomas Charlton, descended the Charltons of Chilwell; from his third son, Thomas, the Charltons of Breaston (who removed to Chilwell on the extinction of the elder branch in 1748), and the Charltons of Risley; his next surviving son, Edward, inherited the lease of Sandiacre rectory. The old rectory or prebendal house (where the Charltons resided), which stood on the side of the hill at the south-east end of the church, had been converted into a farm-house, and was pulled down about 1864, and a new farm-house erected on the site. Some of the rooms were beautifully panelled in old oak, part of which now covers the walls of the dining-room at Chilwell Hall, and part remains in the present farm-house. Katharine Charlton, of Sandiacre, eldest daughter of Nicholas of Chilwell, by will dated 30th Jan., 1634, says: "I give unto Mr Edward Henshaw Minister at Sandiacre the sume of fourty shillings" and in an undated codicil adds "the legacie given to Mr Henshawe of xl s in her former will to be given to Mr Whitchurch and foure poundes more. Proved at Lichfield 22d May 1637. Inventory taken by Tho: Charlton Gent, and Richard Whitchurch clerk, cur. de Sandiacre, 3 May 1637." In the will of Anne Charlton, of Sandiacre, widow, proved 1691, occurs "To Mr John Barret', senior twenty shillings desireing him to preach my funerall sermon." The baptisms of John Barrett's children occur in the register from 1665 to 1676, so that he was probably curate. For this information we are indebted to the kindness of Thomas W. Charlton, Esq., of Chilwell Hall.

Here lyeth the bodys of Anne & John Charlton daughter and son of Henry and Anne Charlton of Risley, anne dyed February the 5 th 1695, aged 3 years, & John dyed April 24 th 1696, aged about 5 years. Memento Mori.
